Help support Alternatives for Girls in the Co-op Cares Project

Co-op Services Credit Union has selected Alternatives for Girls as one of its Co-op Cares Project charities and now we need your help – and your VOTE!

Co-op Services Credit Union has a 55-year history of giving back to its members and the community. That's why, earlier this year, they created Project 100, a program designed to promote the positive aspects of giving in our local communities. Basically, Co-op Services is giving away 100 dollar bills to 100 random people over 100 days in an effort to encourage people to give back to others in their local community. The success of Project 100 has inspired the credit union to expand the giving to local charities by creating the Co-op Cares Project!

From now until the end of the year, Co-op Services Credit Union will give $100 to anyone who opens a Co-op Services FREE Checking Account. Recipients can keep the money if they need it, but if they can, Co-op asks that they join in on the giving by donating a portion of the money to a local charity.

This is where we need your help! For the next two months, all visitors to Co-op's Project 100 website (www.whatisproject100.com) are being asked to vote for their favorite Co-op Cares Project charity and at the end of the year, the three charities with the most votes will each receive one-third of all donations collected – so Alternatives for Girls needs your vote!

Be sure to check out all of the Co-op Cares Project Charities (www.whatisproject100.com) and VOTE for Alternatives for Girls today! And, if you'd like more information about a checking account that helps the community, visit the Co-op Services website (www.cscu.org) for details.
